Social Investment Highlights

In 2020, USAA and The USAA Foundation, Inc. have elevated philanthropic support for military members, their families and local communities affected by the coronavirus pandemic, investing more than $13 million in dozens of national and local organizations that offer a wide range of critical services. The dollars will provide funding across four main areas: financial support for military families; food insecurity; critical medical research and equipment; and access to education-related resources for military families and local communities.

This investment will support COVID-19 vaccine research and treatment efforts through the Texas Biomedical Research Institute, UT Health San Antonio, UTSA and Southwest Research Institute. In addition, these dollars will provide critical PPE, drive-through testing, ventilators and other necessary equipment to UT Health San Antonio. Funds will also support the Army Emergency Relief, the Air Force Aid Society, Navy Marine Corp Relief Society and Coast Guard Mutual Assistance in providing emergency financial support for active duty, guard and reserve families.
